Crowds Arrive In Elwood To Hear Willkie Address

HOME TOWN OF NOMINEE PUTS ON DECORATION

Flag-Bedecked Indiana City Has County Fair Air For Acceptance Speech.

TALK SET AT 4 P. M.

Candidate to Give Views on Foreign, Domestic Issues In 30 Minutes.

(By Associated Press)

ELWOOD, Ind.—The flag-bedecked home town of Wendell L. Willkie welcomed throngs of visitors in a gala county fair atmosphere today for the official opening of the Republican presidential campaign.

Long before the nominee's special train was due at 1:30 p. m. (Mansfield Time) crowds were arriving by all forms of conveyance.

They had two main goals—the big red brick school house where Willkie asked to make a short speech early in the afternoon, and Calaway park on the edge of town, site of his formal acceptance address.

While awaiting the ceremonies, many of the visitors walked or rode by the freshly-painted white house at 1900 A street, where Willkie was born 48 years ago. It cost 20 cents to go inside. In the yard was a stand—one of hundreds throughout the city—with soda pop, peanuts and popcorn on sale.

Willkie himself, along with his wife, and son, Phillip, decided to stay until the last minute at Rushville, where they had been visiting since Thursday night. Yesterday had been set aside as a day of rest for the nominee, but he kept busy with two visits to his five farms and a surprise evening call on the newspapermen covering his activities.

The other participants in the

OFF FOR ELWOOD

Mansfielders on Train Headed For Willkie Acceptance.

A 10-coach Erie train pulled into Mansfield at 8:50 a. m. today to take on the 70 Mansfielders who went to Elwood, Ind., to attend the Wendel L. Willkie celebration.

The train, which had been made up at Youngstown, carried coaches from that city, from Akron and Ashland and after leaving Mansfield at 8:55 it was scheduled to stop at Galion and Marion for additional coaches.

The train was expected to arrive in Elwood at noon, leaving there at 5 p. m. for the homeward trip. It is scheduled to reach here about 9 p. m.

Mayor W. J. Locke, who returned from his Canadian fishing trip last night, Service Director C. M. Crafton, both of whom went by excursion train, and R. E. Gardner and Harry E. Hawley, who motored to Elwood, had tickets to the Willkie luncheon this noon.

Indianapolis Crowds Welcome Willkie

En route to Elwood, Ind., to formally accept today the Republican nomination for the U. S. presidency, Wendell Willkie stops off at his native state capital, Indianapolis, and receives a tremendous ovation from the welcoming Hoosierites who jammed the streets to see him.

FACING LIFE TERM IN PEN

Defendant In Murder Case Offers to Plead Guilty To Second Degree.

County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said today that county authorities probably will accept a plea of guilty to a second degree murder charge from Albert Davis, 35, colored, Mansfield, accused of slaying Mrs. Lena Morton, also colored, in her home several weeks ago.

Davis pleaded innocent to a first-degree murder indictment when he was arraigned Aug. 3 before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston. Marriott said Davis had agreed to plead guilty to a second-degree charge which carries a mandatory life sentence.

If authorities reduce the charge and accept Davis' guilty plea it would eliminate the necessity of a trial.

The prosecutor pointed out that evidence that the murder was premeditated is lacking in the case, making it difficult to convict on a first-degree charge. Mrs. Morton was fatally stabbed in her room on North Mulberry street and Davis was seen leaving the room a short time later. It must be proved beyond doubt that a slaying was planned in order to convict a prisoner of first-degree murder.

Marriott said a jury will be called next Wednesday to hear a criminal assault charge against James Foster, Mansfield, indicted for an alleged attack on a 15-year-old Mansfield school girl.

After that trial is completed, a case involving Jerry Wilt, Ashland, indicted for obtaining property under false pretense, is scheduled to go before the jury. Wilt is accused of misrepresenting himself as a fireworks dealer to get $246 worth of fireworks from an Ohio firm last June.

INJURIES FATAL

PIQUA — (AP) — Mrs. Lavara Bowles, 20, Detroit, died in a hospital yesterday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near here.

Showers, Cooler Weather Forecast For Today, Sunday

Showers are forecast for tonight and tomorrow—that is for the "west and north portions" and Mansfield is hoping it comes in under the geographical line.

The Sunday showers, if they materialize, will bring lowered temperatures, according to the weatherman.

Yesterday the mercury stayed well below the 90 mark stopping when it reached 86. However, the average of 75 was several degrees above the normal temperature of 71.

The official thermometer today noon showed 85 and there was a light breeze to take the sting off of this.

FIRES IN PARK

Six Blazes Halt Travel In Part of Yellowstone.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. —(U.P.)—Six forest fires raged today in the southwest corner of the nation's biggest playground area, forcing a suspension of travel between the west thumb district and the south gate of Yellowstone National park.

Two new blazes broke out yesterday, just as rangers got a blaze in the Fox park section under control. The others have been burning for more than a week.

More than 1,000 men were on the fire lines at Ranger lake, Moose creek, Ozel falls and Mountain Ash creeks. High winds and extremely dry weather made the situation critical.

NO OHIO VISIT

RUSH TO PAY TAX ACCOUNTS

Scores Line Up at Treasurer's Office to Pay Before Deadline Next Tuesday.

With the tax payment deadline only three days away, scores of property owners jammed the county treasurer's office today to pay their taxes for the last half of the year.

It was the busiest day since the collection began early in July and receipts for the day were expected to mount to one of the highest figures of the payment period. The treasurer's office was scheduled to remain open until 3:30 p. m. today to handle payments.

Receipts yesterday amounted to $30,016, second highest day's total since the books opened. Collections to this morning totaled $464,328.

Treasurer John E. Kolb expects receipts to go well over the half-million mark before the tax books close Tuesday night, and mail payments and those made to collectors are expected to boost the total for the last half of the year past $600,000.

If receipts for the last half of the year reach $600,000, total real estate and special assessment collections for the year will be nearly $1,300,00, one of the best annual collections in recent years.

A 10 per cent penalty will be added to taxes paid after the Aug 20 deadline, except in cases where checks are mailed before the deadline and do not reach the treasurer's office until after Tuesday night.

ADVOCATE AID

Ohio Chamber Urges Release Of Destroyers To Britain.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Chamber of Commerce has sent a telegram to President Roosevelt, members of his cabinet and congress urging "immediate release of 50 destroyers to Great Britain and "aid to England as the best method of localizing the war in Europe and keeping it away from our shores."

KEY CONGRESS LEADERS OKAY DEAL ON BASES

Poll Shows They're In Favor Of 'Reasonable' Plan to Strengthen Defenses.

ISOLATIONISTS OBJECT

White House, State Department Silent on Price to Be Paid For Bases.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Key congressmen were ready today to approve any "reasonable" deal that President Roosevelt might make with Great Britain and Canada for their western hemisphere territories for use as United States defense bases.

This was apparent from an International News Service poll of leaders in both houses of congress following the president's statement he was carrying on negotiations with London and Ottawa in an attempt to bulwark the western hemisphere's rampart against aggression.

Only senators of the "isolationist bloc" objected, holding such a transaction would further "entangle" this country in Europe's politics.

Several members of congress suggested that cancellation of Great Britain's $1,600,000,000 debt to the United States, contracted during the first World war, would be a fair price for British possessions in the western hemisphere.

Both the White House and the state department, meanwhile, maintained silence as to the price America proposes to pay for naval and air rights on strategic points, such as the Bahamas, Barbados, British Honduras and sites along the Canadian coast.

While technical experts in the state, war and navy departments were being consulted, officials said the negotiations were being conducted by the president personally with Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, and Loring Christie, the Canadian minister.

Chairman Vinson (D.) of the house naval affairs committee, asked about the president's negotiations, said:

"It is essential for the defense of the Panama canal that we have

BOY, 15, KILLED

Morrow County Youth Struck By Automobile Near Home.

MT. GILEAD—While riding his bicycle near his home, four miles south of Mt. Gilead, on Route 61, John A. Brigmon, 15, was struck and killed instantly yesterday by an automobile driven by John Jaster, 22, son of former State Highway Director John J. Jaster, jr., of Cleveland.

Jaster was absolved of blame for the death after an investigation by Dr. Lowell Murphy, Morrow county coroner, State Patrolmen Cook of the Mt. Vernon highway patrol sub-station, Sheriff Oscar George of Morrow county, and Morrow county Prosecutor Nelson Campbell.

The authorities stated there was no evidence in the wreckage of the bicycle that the vehicle had either a light or a reflector. Jester's brakes were also reported by the authorities to be in good condition.

New and Greater Bombers Take Part In 'Full Blast' War

BRITISH SEND BOMBERS BACK AGAINST FOES

Raids Made Deep Into Nazi Territory to Hamper Air Blitzkrieg.

(By United Press)

LONDON — British bombers smashed deep into Germany last night and early today as aerial warfare continued over the British Isles with little respite.

New flights of German bombers over the battered southeast coast were reported but at least in the early hours of the day the attack was not as fierce as on some previous days.

The air ministry reported officially that the Germans employed fewer planes in yesterday's attacks than on Thursday despite the widespread nature of the raids which reached into London's Metropolitan area.

Hardly had the major German air activity ceased for the day than large flights of British bombers were roaring back across the channel for attacks on Germany and objectives in German-held territory.

These attacks, it was said here, were not merely a retaliation for the bombing of London's suburbs. They were part of a British campaign to blast the centers of German power and paralyze German initiative both for the air blitzkrieg and the possible invasion of the British Isles.

The air ministry indicated that the attacks were highly successful and that "important objec-

Berlin Radio Declares All Ships Near England In Danger of Destruction; United States' Withdrawal of Shipping Commended.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Three big steamers struck mines and two sank near the Isle of Man this morning, DNB, official German news agency, reported. The third was said to have been given a bad list.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler warned the world today the British Isles are under complete blockade and that Germany would not be responsible for destruction of neutral vessels or lives within the besieged waters where the war is being fought at "full blast."

The proclamation of the complete blockade and warning to all neutrals was broadcast by the official German radio as new and more powerful Nazi bombers roared across the English cannel bent on destruction of Britain's harbor facilities, airports and plants producing war supplies.

Some nations like the United States and Argentina, the German proclamation declared, have long since regarded the waters around England as a war zone and have forbidden their ships, airplanes and citizens to enter them.

Germany, the proclamation continued, has repeatedly warned other neutral states and was now repeating that warning.

"It is in the interest of these states themselves to comply with this request at the greatest possible speed," the statement said.

"The whole region is infested with mines," the proclamation said. "Airplanes are attacking every vessel. Every neutral vessel which is sailing in this region in the future, therefore, is running the risk of being destroyed."

As the Nazis resumed their daylight raids on the island kingdom, time bombs dropped in yesterday's great raid caused delayed explosions in London's southwestern suburbs.

The British retaliated for the assault on the Thames estuary and the London area by counter-attacking Germany. The air ministry announced the RAF did considerable damage last night to a plant at Luna, near Leipzig, used for the production of oil from coal, and to other "important" objectives.

DNB, official German news agency, describing the new Nazi bombers used against England as veritable flying battleships of great capacity and heavier armament, said their sides bristle with machine guns. And they carry more potential destruction than anything ever previously flown by man.

The time bombs which exploded were similar to those which brought death to unsuspecting Parisians after the raid on the French capital June 3.

Hospital Clerk 'Busy,' Takes 55 Minutes for 'Job'

Apparently as "punishment" for stories published in the News-Journal concerning a woman who was temporarily refused admission to General hospital, a News-Journal reporter was forced to wait 55 minutes today to obtain a list of patient admissions and releases, a routine that usually takes less than 10 minutes.

Mrs. Anna B. Miller, a clerk in charge of compiling the hospital report, told a reporter he would have to wait. He waited . . . and waited . . . and waited. Deciding to "wait her out" while Mrs. Miller seemingly kept busy picking up papers, telephoning, etc.

The clock kept ticking on and finally at 9:20 a. m. the "big job" was completed and the reporter, 45 minutes behind schedule, continued on his way.

The News-Journal carries the list of hospital admissions and releases as a matter of news, primarily for the information of friends and relatives of patients.

VICTORY: Italians Declare Somaliland Battle Now Won

(By Associated Press)

ROME—The battle for British Somaliland now can be considered won, the authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda declared today.

While official Italian communiques reported a full British retreat in Somaliland, Gayda wrote in the newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia that, within a few days, the colony would cease to form a part of the British empire and would be combined in the economic and military organization of Italian east Africa.

The Italian high command declared that bloody fighting in Somaliland had reached its "culminating point" in a general British retreat.

It said British warships in the harbor had been subjected to a heavy attack in the Alexandria bombing yesterday.

OTHER STORY

CAIRO (NS—Damaging British air raids on Italian troops and military objectives in British Somaliland and other African fighting zones were announced by a Royal Air Force communique today.

"The R. A. F. again raided Tobruk harbor," the communique said.

"Direct hits were registered on a naval oil tank, submarines, naval jetties, where fired were burning many hours later.

"Our aircraft continued to

They Got Around

It takes a bunch of Mansfield boys to really find out about New York. George Sattler tells you about it in his story of the five Eagle scouts who returned this week from a tour of the East after all kinds of adventures with automats and city slickers.

Contact Man

In a story on the work of Richland county's agricultural agent, Virgil A. Stanfield writes and pictures demonstrate that local farmers are not so far removed from the complicated workings of Washington bureaus as you might think.

How Blind Men See

Through two interviews with Mansfielders who have not let blindness handicap them either socially or in business, Jane Williams tells you how men who cannot see are still able to recognize their friends and find their way about the city unaided.

Of Many Things

From a story on candidate Martin L. Davey's recent letter to Richland county old-age pensioners on through Broadway gossip, behind the scenes news in Washington, local "chatter," sports society, women's features, and colored comics, the Sunday edition offers many things to fill your reading time with information and amusement.

There are installments of the interesting "Do You Remember" and "City Farmers" series, pictures of the Johns park watermelon festival, and . . .

Windsor Takes Over Duties as Governor of Bahamas

STEPS ASHORE TO TAKE OATH OF NEW OFFICE

Ceremonies at Nassau Wharf Witnessed by Crowd of 16,000 Residents.

NASSAU—The duke of Windsor landed at ancient St. George's wharf today and was sworn to office as governor of the Bahamas.

The duke, accompanied by his American-born duchess, stepped ashore from a gray steamer, at 8:16 a. m. (EST) to the sound of a royal salute and the strains of "God Save The King."

He wore a khaki general's uniform and the duchess wore a flowered blue and pink dress, a royal blue coat, a white-shelled turban and blue jewelled ear rings with clip to match.

A crowd of 16,000 persons jammed the waterfront, Rawston's square and Bay street to watch the arrival.

The duke stood at attention during the cermonies while the duchess smiled at the honor guard and fanned herself with a palm-leaf fan as the duke reviewed the troops turned out in his honor.

The bay was crowded with small craft and the low white and pink buildings along the waterfront were filled with sightseers craning their necks for the first sight of the man who gave up the throne of Great Britain for love of Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore.

The duke's steamer, a 4,941-ton vessel which picked up him, the duchess of Windsor and their entourage at Bermuda two days ago, docked at Prince George's wharf.

FLEES GUNFIRE

Suspect In Robbery Finally Captured Near Lima.

LIMA—(AP)—Captured at pistol point by a lone state highway patrolman, a man identified by Police Chief James Goodwin as George Grobe, 40, wanted for a July 31 robbery at Sandusky, was held today in city jail.

Patrolman H. L. McAren fired three shots as Grobe fled across fields after wrecking his automobile in a ditch. A posse of highway patrolmen, Lima police and Allen county sheriff's deputies combed the countryside unsuccessfully for several hours before the fugitive emerged from a woods and found McAren waiting for him.

Goodwin said Grobe was one of three men who robbed a Sandusky drug store. McAren started the chase when he noted Grobe's automobile license number tallied with that of the hold-up car.

State Fair Chief Predicts Balance For Second Year

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A balanced exchequer for the second time in the 90-year history of the Ohio state fair was predicted by Fair Manager Win H. Kinnan today, one week before the opening of the 1940 exposition.

Kinnan said that the no-free-pass rule adopted last year would be in effect again, although modified to cover "ladies' day" when women and children under 12 will be admitted free.

"Inadequate ticket and pass systems bring losses of from 10 to 35 per cent of gross receipts to the average fair," Kinnan said, attributing last year's profit of $10,000 to improvement in admittance procedure.

In addition to gate receipts Kinnan looks to concession rentals to yield revenue greater than the $210,000 appropriated by the legislature for the 1940 exhibition. Most of the appropriation goes into the $134,000 premium list.

A call to the sheriff's office this morning from a farmer near Lucas who wanted the officers to catch his run-away bull brought no immediate move to start a searching party, but it started a lot of discussion of the best way to handle an angry bull. Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer who operates a farm and knows about bulls said the only way to handle them is to always keep advancing toward them, making them believe you're not afraid. A bit skeptical, Deputy Frank Robinson suggested that Gongwer try his method on this bull because he was afraid he might not get near enough so the bull would know whether he was advancing or retreating.

There are strange things going on out at the police target range at Ontario these days. Anyone observing the antics of Mansfield police as they go through the various stages of the FBI course in pistol shooting would think the bluecoats were playing a game of tag. However, they are required to fire at the target, then reload, run to cover, shoot from a sitting position, then from behind a door they had erected and then run again and fire from a prone position. Several have opined that there's not much chance of getting fat on the job now.

Ada Bessie Swan, director of the Home Service Center for Woman's Home Companion, has been in Mansfield for the past two days, the guest of Westinghouse Institute. Miss Swan, one of the top bracket "career women" an internationally known magazine writer on home making, makes at least one trip to Mansfield every year. When she's at the Westinghouse Institute kitchen for a luncheon, the best china, linens and fanciest foods are brought out. But like all business women she's politically minded and at yesterday's luncheon it was politics and not food that was the chief topic of conversation.

BOY, 6, RUNS IN PATH OF AUTO

Perrysville Youngster Hurt In Mishap; Mansfield Bike Victim Recovering.

Running across the street in the path of an automobile yesterday afternoon sent Robert Taylor, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clugh Taylor, R. D. 2, Perrysville, to General hospital with a deep cut in his back and a possible lung puncture.

Police said Taylor had his car double parked in front of the Isaly Dairy company, North Franklin street and that the child ran toward it from the opposite side of the street.

A car driven by Andrew McBride, 332 Monroe street, swerved to avoid the parked car and struck the boy as he ran in front of it. McBride took him to General hospital. Hospital attaches said today that the child's condition today was "good."

Robert Wyllie, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wyllie, Johns avenue, who was taken to the hospital yesterday morning following an accident in which the boy's bicycle struck a stone and he was thrown to the ground, regained consciousness last evening after being in a coma for nine hours.

Members of the family said it had been impossible to take X-rays to determine if the boy had sustained a fractured skull.

Two girls, Anna Nake, 15, of 102 Wood street, and Esther Duncan, 17, 230 Sturges avenue, received brush burns about the legs yesterday when they were thrown against the curbstone on their bicycles. Harold Adams, driver of a truck, told police the girls rode between his truck and a car parked at the curb on Park avenue east, and that when the driver in the parked car opened the left hand door, the girls were forced into his truck and thrown against the curb.

Two cars colliding head-on were badly damaged last evening on the Ontario-Lexington road, but the drivers, Mike Gerich, 20 Spruce street, and John Weigler, R. D. 6, were uninjured, according to the sheriff's office.

NO QUARTER

Ohio Building Trades Council Hits at 'Objectors.'

SANDUSKY —(AP)— Conscientious objectors to American military training get no quarter from the Ohio State Building Trades council, an AFL affiliate.

The council, headed today by a new president—John Breidenbach of Dayton—criticized conscientious objectors and religious sects failing to comply with government defense preparations in a resolution adopted in closing sessions of the organization's annual convention at nearby Cedar Point.

WAR OMELET

Bombardment Unnerves Hens and Their Product.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. —(AP)— Joe Mikulich complained to the state board of control that the California national guard fired a 37MM shell through his chicken house, killed 14 chickens, damaged the building to the extent of $7 and so unnerved hens to prevent them from laying the eggs of unmarketable size. He wanted $78.47 redress.

FORD GEARS INDUSTRY TO TURN OUT MOTORS FOR U. S. PLANES

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Henry Ford today geared his industrial organization to national defense ready to build airplane motors at once, it was understood that powerful fighting airplanes might be put into production soon.

Ford motor company officials announced that a contract had been signed with the war department for the manufacture of 4,000 airplane motors of the Pratt and Whitney design. Ford engineers have designed a plane powered with two liquid-cooled motors, similar to the U. S. army's new twin-motored Lockheed P-38 pursuit planes, said to be the deadliest of fighters, and it was intimated that the company planned to make them on a mass production basis.

Two months ago, Ford announced that he could build 1,000 planes daily without taxing the capacity of his vast River Rouge plant, largest industrial unit in the world.

Later, Ford refused to accept a contract to make 3,000 Rolls Royce motors for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain because he didn't want to devote American plants to foreign war orders, though his Canadian and English factories are assisting the British war effort. The new contract is for motors for United States only.

URGES RELEASE

Ohio C. of C. Wants U. S. to Give Britain 50 Ships.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The Ohio Chamber of Commerce today urged the national administration and congress to "release" fifty destroyers to Great Britain immediately, declaring that aid to England in her present crisis "is the best method of keeping the war away from our shore."

Identical telegrams sent to President Roosevelt, navy officials and congressional leaders by George B. Chandler, executive vice-president of the Chamber, said that the action "reflects the opinion of a great majority of the people of Ohio."

The statement added that Ohio is impatient with the "apparently dilatory tactics of congress in providing for national defense."

CONVERSATIONS ABOUT DEFENSE PROBLEMS SET

Railroad Car Meeting With MacKenzie King Booked For Tonight.

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO OGDENSBURG, N. Y. — President Roosevelt swung into upper New York state today to keep a rendezvous with Canadian Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King and debate problems of mutually grave concern to the United States and Canada in the light of England's last-ditch stand against Nazi Germany.

The heads of the two great states will meet tonight aboard the president's private car on a railroad siding at Ogdensburg. Over the small dining table they will pursue what Mr. Roosevelt has announced as "conversations looking to defense of the American hemisphere."

Foremost in the minds of both unquestionably will be the negotiations now pending between Washington and London whereby the United States may acquire vitally strategic naval and air bases on British-owned islands stretching off the Atlantic coast line from Newfoundland to Trinidad. British Prime Minister Winston Churchill has announced willingness to give the United States a 99-year lease on any of its new world possessions in the north Atlantic and the Caribbean.

Last-minute announcement after the presidential special had left Washington last night that the president and MacKenzie King would confer completely overshadowed the original business which took Mr. Roosevelt into upper New York state—inspection of the army's biggest peacetime maneuvers involving 91,000 regulars and national guardsmen of the first army.

The United States is squarely on record as pledged to intervene should Canada ever be attacked. At Kingston, Ontario, two years ago the president specifically placed the British dominion under the Monroe doctrine.

In August, 1939, Mr. Roosevelt cruised north Atlantic waters in the vicinity of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland—a cruise cut short, in fact, by actual outbreak of the European war. The chief executive and his naval aides on that cruise made themselves well acquainted with potential bases for the American navy and air force should occasion ever arise.

What Can a Hospital Do, What Kind of a Place Is It Really Set Up to Be?

—By JANE WILLIAMS

SINCE the war in England is too terrible to dwell on and the draft problem hasn't jelled yet, let's talk about things local. General hospital, for instance.

After a story in this week's News-Journal about a woman being refused admittance and treatment at the hospital because her husband still owed on a former bill, there was a wave of indignation and protest.

Without going into the merits of that particular case—and I don't know anything about it—this seems a good time to consider the hospital, its responsibility to the town and your responsibility to the institution.

There has long been a mistaken impression that General hospital is a charitable institution, open to anyone in need. But did you ever stop to ask who would pay for all of this charitable work, or how long the hospital could operate if it didn't, as its superintendent says, "count the pennies"?

While the hospital is a public institution in Mansfield, it isn't tax-supported. Nor does it have large annuities or endowments which support so many similar institutions. In other words, it is operated almost entirely on its own income.

The hospital doesn't take in charity cases knowingly. Every indigent case is paid for by the city or township trustees. The institution's bad accounts can't be listed as charity any more than a merchant can list his bad accounts as charity. They are simply bad business guesses.

Last year the city paid the hospital $10,724 for indigent cases which the city sent to the hospital, while Madison township trustees paid about $3,500 for cases outside the city but in the township. But these funds, of course, were earmarked for specific cases.

IF the hospital were to take in, without question and without guarantee of payment, all needy cases that come along, it wouldn't be able to continue operations. Someone has to pay for those cases. They must either be paid for by private funds or by tax funds.

Which bring us to the $6,000 a year which the hospital receives from the Community Fund and which has long been a bone of contention.

Many times in the past few years I have expressed the opinion to the head of the hospital and to heads of the Community Fund that General hospital should withdraw from the Fund. I believe it would be better for both. If the hospital is not a charitable institution, then it has no claim to charity and welfare funds of the city.

As it is, it receives about $6,000 annually and because of that, citizens expect charitable service that might conceivably amount to thousands of dollars a year. The hospital uses most of the Community Fund money to operate its emergency room.

There can be little doubt as to the efficient business methods behind the hospital management. Any non-profit institution that can build the additions and make the improvements that General hospital has in the past few years and pay for them out of its "non-profits" must serve as an inspiration to other business concerns. It must, indeed, watch the pennies.

So then, if you expect General hospital to take in cases that are not good business ventures, you must expect to provide the funds—and believe me, it's going to take much more than the $6,000 which it receives from the Community Fund annually.

THE undersecretary of the air division of France has announced at Vichy that during its battle with German forces, from May 10 to June 10 French flyers shot down 982 German planes, losing only 306 planes themselves.

If this ratio of three to one could be depended on in the English battle, there might be reason to hope that eventually the Germans would run out of ammunition. Anyway this statement from an authoritative source leads you to trust the English figures on plane losses rather than the German.

TESTIMONY in Hollywood this week from a member of the Communist party puts the red brand on a number of filmdom's famous figures. It may be true and it may not. Grandpappy had an old axiom that "where there's smoke there's bound to be fire." If these people of Hollywood most of whom have become independently wealthy under the American system, have ever been members of the Communist party, then they deserve to be boycotted on the screen and reduced to the income to which they would be entitled under a Communist regime.

On the other hand I can't get very excited about the story. Hollywood is the home of the world's most gullible people, but none of them is particularly dangerous. There may be parlor pinks out there, but I doubt if any of them are really serious about sharing their marble swimming pools with the Great Unwashed.

And as for their taking politics seriously, like the comment of one of their intimates:

"I'll bet half of those named as Communists don't know who is president of the United States."

Nazis Proclaim Full Blockade of Britain

Declare All Ships Near England Face Danger of Destruction; New and More Powerful Bombers Used.

More persons in the suburb were made homeless as one delayed bomb damaged several houses; another exploded near a factory.

A third blew up a bare minute after a dozen or more persons, drawn by curiosity to the bomb, had sensed the danger and moved away.

As the Nazis resumed their daylight raids on Wales and the southern coast, the British announced German plane losses on Thursday had been raised to at least 180, and yesterday's to 75, while their own yesterday were 22.

The German high command said central England and the harbors of Cardiff, Wales, Newport and Bristol had been successfully bombed and a British destroyer sunk off the Isle of Wight.

The high command said the British lost 89 planes yesterday, 59 of them in air fights during the mass attacks on Britain, 23 destroyed on the ground and seven destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, as well as 22 barrage balloons. They conceded the loss of 31 of their own.

Germany, however, said Britain had not yet been subjected to a real "large-scale attack" and that the worst was yet to come. The present attacks simply are a "strong armed reconnaissance," Germany said.

The German night raiders attacked a wide area in Wales, and two Welsh towns reported casualties. Two bombs struck the main square in one town, damaging several houses.

Britain charged officially that the Germans had "deliberately" attacked the residential town of Eastbourne yesterday evening, causing casualties. Dive bombers raided the south coast resort which, although in a defense area with children removed and travel restricted, was said by the British to have no military objectives.

The Germans, following up their heavy blasting at the environs of London Friday, reiterated that their purpose was complete control of the air over Britain.

"There'll be no stopping now," they said.

Many German commentators contended that the weakening of Britain's air defenses already was apparent, some fliers asserting they actually "loafed" over London for a half-hour Friday without being challenged.

As they made these claims and while the German radio said there was a near-panic in London, with millions huddling in shelters by the hour, Germans were sternly and repeatedly warned by that same radio to look out for British reprisals.

Berliners were ordered to make the nightly blackout even blacker.

The Germans argued that their repeated aerial pounding, now in its seventh consecutive day, was softening Britain.

They said their bombers went over Friday with comparatively few Messerschmitt fighter escorts, yet delivered load after load of bombs on England.

They said the fewer escorts meant fewer dogfights, and thus accounted for lower plane losses.

But "softening" or not, the British made some raids of their own.

The Germans admitted the RAF was striking at airdromes along the German-held French coast, and Switzerland had another air alarm as planes zoomed over, bound toward Italy.

Italy's friction with Greece took a new twist when the Italian naval attache at Athens was reliably said to have apologized to Greek Premier John Metaxas for a bombing attack on two Greek destroyers yesterday.

The unsuccessful attack, following the sinking of the Greek cruiser Helle by a "mysterious" submarine, caused Greece to call more men to the colors effective Aug. 20.

The Italian naval attache was said to have told Metaxas that the Italian airmen thought the Greek vessels were British.

Italian authorities said they had no information about the reported bombing of the destroyers. Fascist newspapers carried nothing.

The Italians, however, were less reticent about the African campaign. The high command declared the British were retreating all along the British Somaliland front and said Italian planes had bombed port works and warships in the harbor of Alexandria, Egypt.

The British on the other hand, said RAF planes had again raided the harbor of Tobruk, Libya, registering direct hits on a naval oil tank, a submarine and naval jetties and causing large fires.

French airmen operating with the RAF, their communique said, fought off an Italian raid on Berbera, capital of British Somaliland.

outlying bases. The secretary of the navy has been given authority to establish these bases, and if it can best be done by negotiating with other countries, it should be done in that way."

Chairman May (D.) of the house military affairs committee added.

"I am one hundred per cent for it, and I hope the negotiations will be quickly concluded."

Sen Pepper (D., Fla.), strong advocate of aid to Great Britain, hailed Mr. Roosevelt's announcement as an aid to strengthen national defenses. He also proposed that 50 U S. over-age destroyers be sold to the British immediately to aid them in the channel fight against Germany.

Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee, consistent supporter of White House policy on foreign affairs, refrained from making a statement on air and naval bases, but reiterated his support for the sale of destroyers to Britain.

Judge Thinks It's Gambling, Orders Race Wire Cut Out

COLUMBUS — (AP) — It looks like gambling to Common Pleas Judge Edward C. Turner, so telephone service to the Empire News Service is scheduled to be cut off at 6 p. m. today.

Counsel for Empire withdrew an application for an injunction against the Ohio Bell Telephone company yesterday when Judge Turner scanned a daily racing scratch sheet put out by the service and remarked.

"This sheet shows gambling operations, the odds are there."

When counsel argued that Cuyahoga and Hamilton county courts had granted temporary injunctions in similar cases, Judge Turner replied "maybe those courts are not as well acquainted with dope sheets and gambling as I am."

The hearing was continued indefinitely.

TEN MOTORISTS, ARRESTED ON TRAFFIC CHARGES, IN COURT

Ten automobile drivers, arrested by state highway patrolmen and city traffic officers, appeared in municipal court this morning.

Carl R. Culler, Lucas, made the mistake of thinking that the motorcycle behind him was ridden by a friend instead of a traffic officer. Culler, in his car, and a friend on a motorcycle started for the airport last evening where both are taking pilot instruction.

Somewhere in the city traffic the two were separated and when young Culler saw a cyclist behind him, honking loudly, he thought it was his friend signaling him to go faster. He stepped it up to 52 miles in a 25 mile zone, according to Traffic Patrolman Paul Martin who was on the motorcycle. Culler pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Arnold J. Rose, Cleveland, a student at Ohio State university, was fined $15 and costs and his driving rights suspended for 60 days. The case had been carried over from Aug. 10. He had been arrested in Cleveland on July 27 for speeding and two weeks later in Mansfield for the second offense.

Robert Leather, arrested by state patrol for unsafe operation, asked that his case be continued to Aug. 19.

All of the other drivers pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and costs each. They were Jacob A. Campbell, R. D. 2, Shiloh, charged with unsafe operation; Charles Myers, Greenwich, speeding; John DuBay, Cleveland, unsafe operation; Clarence Easterday, speeding on Ausdale avenue, Elmer Wallstrom, 166 West Fourth street, speeding on East Fourth street; and Harry Smith, Owensville, Ind., speeding on route 30-N.

George Reichart, manager of the Service Taxi company, was fined $5 and costs for permitting one of his cabs to operate without a governor on the motor.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be thankful that highway patrolmen are on the lookout for reckless drivers.

Delay May Lead To Disaster

UNLESS the present devastation being wrought in England by vast numbers of Nazi bombing planes serves to awaken lethargic American officials, legislators and citizens to realization that, in the event of Great Britain's overthrow, similar horrors might not be long in coming to the United States, the future for this country is darker than can now be imagined.

Instead of being across the Atlantic ocean, three thousand miles away, the war is actually as close as the Canadian border, for Canada is as much at war as is Great Britain. Subjugation of the British Isles, as is now being viciously attempted, will leave Canada as the next rich object of Nazi attack, which means that the United States, as a participant with Great Britain and France in the World war, can expect no quarter in a future conflict—unless amply able to defend itself against any foreign power, or combination of powers, that may be thrown against it.

Whether it is physically possible to make such defense preparations as would be necessary in the short time that may be allowed for them is problematical—but this uncertainty does not warrant delay of even a single day in proceeding with utmost speed in the task that lies ahead.

England is now experiencing the grim reality of war's desolation, with deadly bombs raining from above, wanton slaughter going on day after day, homes and factories in crumbling ruins—and the Nazi invaders boasting that the onslaught has scarcely begun. In Poland people are already starving by the thousands. In Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France a winter of suffering and starvation is in store for millions of victims of Hitler's mad orgy of hate and vengeance.

While England has been fighting valiantly for self preservation, and for the preservation of the principles of human freedom, the United States congress has been fiddling and playing petty partisan politics instead of taking action to place America in position to meet the peril that almost assuredly lies ahead.

If Great Britain loses in the struggle now in progress there will be matters of much greater concern to the people of the United States within another few months than the outcome of the November election—or whether fifty or a hundred "over-age" destroyers should be transferred for immediate use by the British.

Why So Much 'No Parking' Space?

WHEN the conversation turns to parking places and traffic congestion, as it frequently does nowadays, a point almost invariably raised is that of orange curb markings at a number of places where there is no apparent justification for a restriction against parking.

According to some observers it has become a practice, in at least a few instances, for unauthorized persons to paint the curb an orange color in front of their places of business, in order to mislead motorists into believing it is a no-parking zone.

If this is being done, even to the extent of barring a few cars from legitimate parking places, official action should be taken to put a stop to it as downtown parking space in Mansfield is in too great demand to have any of it needlessly reserved to meet personal convenience.

Checking Up On Radio Amateurs

AMATEUR radio operators, in compliance with an order of the Federal Communications Commission, are stepping forward these days to file fingerprints and proof of citizenship. Other pertinent information about their radio operations must also be given.

The radio amateur, as you hear his conversations with fellow amateurs in the small hours of the night, is something of a bore to the uninitiated and doesn't sound important to the browsing dialer.

In time of disaster, however, these men are found to be courageous and tremendously useful persons. During the severe floods in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys in 1937, they stayed on the job long hours, helping in rescue work, appealing for aid, and giving important information when other means of communication failed.

In time of war it might be possible for an enemy agent to use his amateur set against the government. Others might unocently give aid to the enemy. Obviously it is necessary that the authorities know all about the amateurs. Most of them will be found honest and loyal individuals, ready to serve their country in any way they can.

Wyoming's Criminal Cases

ENTERPRISING criminals will do well to keep out of Wyoming. Major crimes don't seem to pay there at all. The record for last year in the district courts shows five convictions for every six persons brought to trial. It means 321 convictions out of 385 cases.

An interesting feature of this record is that guilty pleas were entered by 311 of the defendants. There must be less legal juggling and postponement and less eloquence in Wyoming than in most of the other states. So when offenders know the prosecutor has a good case against them, and the court is hardboiled, they give up.

Greater Safety In the Air

THESE are perilous times on earth, but there seems to be greater safety in the sky. That is, outside of the war zone. Halcyon conditions certainly prevail about this country and its waters.

Air travel on commercial lines shows safety figures aptly called "astronomical." According to the Civil Aeronautics Board, there has not been a fatal airline accident since March 6 of last year, and on the first of this month American planes had flown 1,249,594,263 passenger-miles without injury to passengers or crews.

With Jim Farley in charge it may be expected that Yank pitchers will hereafter be called upon for special delivery.

Different Ideas About Democracy

By GUS W. DYER
Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

FEW other words have been so outrageously abused as the word "democracy." The word no longer means anything in particular. In general and all over the world, it is capitalized by radicals to win and hold the allegiance of the unthinking crowd to their programs.

It is grossly misleading to classify American constitutional democracy with the "democracies" as understood and interpreted by the radicals.

To the modern radical a "democracy" is a government under the absolute control of the administration in power, and the administration in power is under the control of the majority of those who go to the polls and vote. Such a "democracy" is free from any constitutional limitations, and may do anything that those in control of the government may will to do.

THE advocates of "democracy" of this type are organized into three separate groups or parties in this country—the socialists, the communists, and the New Dealers. All three of these groups are seeking by different methods to convert our American form of constitutional government into a "democracy" as they define the term. The socialists would persuade the voters to abolish the constitutional system.

The communists are working through subversive organizations to reach their revolutionary objective. The New Dealers have adopted the method of indirection. It is a recognized principle of law that nothing can be done indirectly that is prohibited when done directly.

This principle of law seems now to have little force as the following examples tend to indicate.

(1.) The Administration has no sort of authority under the Constitution to indicate to nor to interfere with the decisions of the Supreme Court But when the decisions of the Court became distasteful to the president he resorted to his policy of indirection to control those decisions by changing the personnel of the court.

(2.) The Constitution gives no authority to the federal government to go into business in competition with private business. But by the administration's legerdemain of indirection the government can go into the electric power business on an unlimited scale under the constitutional authority of improving navigation on rivers even though those rivers have no navigation problems.

THE American constitutional system can be completely destroyed by the subversive "ruse of indirection."

The prime purpose of the founders of the American system was to establish a government that would protect fundamental human rights and the essential principles of social stability and industrial progress against the hazards of irresponsible majority rule.

Working To Prove People Innocent.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I SAW a little newspaper item the other day which has had my face red ever since. Here, read it for yourself.

"District Attorney Dewey summoned the press to his office today to announce that during the last year his department had worked harder to prove Max Uchansky innocent than it had ever worked to get a conviction."

Probably you know the story behind that. A hold-up in a synagogue in New York City by a bunch of young hoodlums . . . the arrest of Max Uchansky amongst other suspects, and his sentence to a term of from ten to thirty years. His loyal sister's constant plea to the district attorney that he was innocent. A fellow convict's confirmation. Then the long search of Detective Tony Scanlon for evidence. Proof at last—and freedom for young Max, after sixteen months of imprisonment.

And District Attorney Dewey saying, "This department has worked harder to prove Uchansky innocent than it has ever worked to get a conviction."

And I, red-faced, thinking, "How hard do I—How much do you and I—ever work to prove anyone innocent?"

I'm not a malicious person. In fact, I'm a real softy. I don't like to see anyone, innocent or guilty, suffer. I wouldn't, willingly, condemn anyone to misery. I've had enough of it, in my own life, to know how it can sting and scar. In short, I'm all-of-a-piece with the average, decent, warm-hearted American. And yet—

I'M ALWAYS TURNING "THUMBS DOWN" ON SOME POOR DEVIL . . . I'M ALWAYS CHARGING SOMEONE WITH BEING GUILTY UNTIL THEY CAN PROVE THEY ARE INNOCENT.

And, I repeat, it isn't because I'm cruel.

It's just because I like excitement!

I hear of some bit of scandal . . . something that violates my sense of decency—

And away slips my sense of justice . . . my civilized veneer . . . and I'm off on the trail—snooping, sneering, suspecting, like a jungle savage!

I don't mean to do this. I'd be furious if anyone told me I was doing it. Yet, looking back, I know that I—I who worship and preach tolerance and mercy—have done this thing again and again.

And so have you! You who are, at heart, as kindly as anyone on earth. Both of us do this beastly thing!

And why do we do it? The answer's as shameful as the deed.

Because our lives are dull. Because our spiritual horizons are still so narrow and cramped. We cannot see into the agony of other souls . . . we cannot realize the tangled urges which drive them on . . . we cannot see the shining beauty of tolerance. And so—

BECAUSE OUR OWN LIVES ARE DARKENED
WE SEE THE OTHER FELLOW IN THE SHADOW
AND HOLD HIM GUILTY UNTIL HE'S PROVEN INNOCENT.

I'm ashamed

Back to the Farm.

The "back to the farm" movement has gone past a mere fad and become a definite population trend. During the past ten years about two million people have returned to rural living, and the 1940 farm population is estimated at 32,245,000, the highest in 24 years and very close to the all-time high reached in 1916.

Part of this increase is due to the excess of births over deaths among farm people, which is higher than in the cities. Urban unemployment also has decreased the urge to leave the farm to go and "make good in the city."

But another factor is the increasing attractiveness of farm life. Under modern conditions, with good roads, electrification, and labor saving machinery, there is less and less difference between the living standard in the country and in the city. We are on the way toward a new kind of living which will combine as never before the best things of both country and city life.—Aurora (Ill.) Beacon-News.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—The personnel of this movie caravan from Hollywood and New York is scattered all over the Virginia countryside. Miss Carroll, Mr. McMurray, Mr. Rutherfurd and the other principals are staying at the Farmington Hunt club.

Leigh Whipper, the splendid negro actor who played the part of the stable hand in "Of Mice and Men" so well on Broadway, and who plays the role of "Uncle Ezekiel" in "Virginia" is staying with the janitor of the Charlottesville Daily Progress, on Vinegar Hill.

Edward H. Griffith, the producer-director, and his staff are maintaining quarters at the Monticello Hotel, in town. The Paramount press staff has leased Piedmont Manor, a magnificent estate about 12 miles out of the city. Piedmont is in the old time tradition, with white columns and a winding approach. The house sets about a quarter of a mile from the road, and originally the grounds included 6,000 acres. These acres have dwindled to about 600 now, but the view is as breath-taking as it ever was. When you stand on the veranda and gaze across the valley to the blue-tinged hills, the beauty of it gets in your eyes.

ONE of the unlooked-for contretemps of this pilgrimage to the Old Dominion has turned out to be what Director Griffith calls "a rather expensive Act of God."

They tried to foresee all the eventualities, but they missed on one thing. This is the year for 17-year locusts. When the locusts sing, they drown out the actors. The sensitive microphones pick up everything.

In desperation (because the delay was costing money) Griffith ordered ropes attached to the tree-tops. He hired 20 men to tug at these ropes, hoping that the disturbance would lull the little pests into silence. But it didn't work.

Griffith mopped his brow and sighed. "These locusts are more temperamental than any star I ever saw," he said. "They are preening themselves, confound them, and their love-making is costing Paramount $2,000 a day."

Finally, somebody remembered that the pests never sang after a rain. So a fire truck was obtained, and before each shot the giant hose played on the trees, whipping them down with artificial rain. The ruse worked.

THERE also is on this set a young man named Sterling Hayden, who is making his first picture. Hayden is a yachtsman and sportsman but he doesn't know anything about riding. All his medals for seamanship did him no good when he climbed on a steeplechaser. He didn't even understand horse lingo, and so the laugh of the camp now is the way Director Griffith gives Hayden direction in nautical terms. . . . "Okay, Hayden, hard astern," yells Griffith when he wants the actor to back up his horse. The riders of the Farmington Hunt Club haven't got over this one yet.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Battle Over British Isles Gains Tempo as Raiders Attack London

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AFTER a Nazi or British pilot returns to his base he walks up to an intelligence officer and states the number of enemy planes he shot down; the number he shot at; and mentions whether pieces of fuselage or smoke (evidence of distress) came from the hit planes.

German pilots must present two witnesses to receive credit for a victory. Britons use the honor system. At a central office all the accounts are totaled and a communique issued.

This week it appeared that either the British or the German pilots were bad counters, or else that someone was padding the lists. For example, on Tuesday Britons said they destroyed 78 enemy planes while losing only 13 themselves. But the Germans counted only 28 of their own planes lost, against 132 for the British.

Both sides agreed, however, that the tempo of the air war had stepped up vastly. Germans were sending over an average of 500 planes a day. A 300-mile-long, 60-mile-wide stretch from Plymouth of the Thames Estuary was their main objective.

Yesterday was another day of intense aerial fighting as Nazi raiders reached London and bombed suburban sections but left the main part of the city intact. This followed Thursday's attack on Croydon airdrome, which had marked a new high in number of Nazi planes in action over the British Isles.

What's Up?

From Louis Lochner, AP's expert in Berlin, came the forecast of "an early zero hour" for a German attempt to land troops on British soil.

Germans were throwing in their top-flight airmen; Nazi minesweepers were busy in the North sea; public dancing was barred in Germany, as during the Polish and Lowland campaigns.

The odds on Germany's chances of success, in Switzerland, were set at 50-50.

Kirke Simpson, AP's veteran news analyst, stated: "If Hitler turns back now, if he shifts to a strategy of starvation blockade instead of invasion, people . . . around the world will say he has suffered a significant if not fatal setback."

Observers recalled Napoleon's lament: "Britain loses every battle except the last one."

After three days of the bombardment, German pilots were chortling that their attacks—the most punishing in history—had so staggered Britain that her airmen often were refusng to come out and fight.

Britons showed their contempt for these tales early Wednesday. They said a great number of British bombers, flying three miles high over the snow-peaked Alps, "smashed" the famed Italian Caproni aircraft factory at Milan and the Fiat plant in Turin. Another squardon bombed German plane factories.

Battle Over the Isles.

An AP newsman offered an eyewitness account of the actual fighting over England:

"There were about 100 German planes in this bunch. When the 27 British fighters opened fire, the Nazis first formed a big circle. The British ringed around them on the outside and started to dive in and out. Then quickly the single big battle broke up into a series of dogfights."

While the British fighters were thus engaged, he wrote, a squadron of German bombers flying much higher slipped past toward inland targets.

Britain's defense against the Stuka dive bombers—besides the RAF fighters—were:

1. Barrage balloons with long cables attached to keep the raiders high enough to prevent accurate fire. (A Nazi pilot complained: "I've pecked at many balloons . . . for those pesky things finish you if you happen to run into them.")

2. A new multi-barreled anti-aircraft gun specially built to snare low flying planes. The shells explode at the slightest contact.

The Germans were reported limbering up Big Berthas across the Channel at Calais. Some of the guns are said to be capable of reaching London, 90 miles away. And many Nazi parachutes were found by Britons.

At Home

Support for Objectors.

Of 64,000 Americans who professed conscientious objections to serving in the World war, nine-tenths were given non-combatant jobs. In the last three months of war, 371 objectors were sentenced to from three to 50 years in jail. Post-war Presidential amnesties freed the long-termers.

As lawmakers debated another draft this week, 167 Protestant clergymen promised to "counsel and support" all objectors to conscription, in peace or war.

Liquor and Skeptics.

In each of seven years since prohibition was repealed leaders of the Women's Christian Temperance Union have forecast confidently the end of repeal. But at their Chicago conference this week a clergyman, the president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, caused arched eyebrows by advising compromise.

"It may be more expedient to allow access to alcohol under close restrictions to those who are not yet ready to recognize the facts about it."

Later delegates petitioned U. S. officials to ban liquor from canteens, training camps and adjacent territories.

Glut In White Collars.

The manner in which algebra, geometry, English composition and foreign language are often taught in high schools "can't be defended in the light of modern conditions," concludes the American Youth commission, a private research body.

The modern conditions it found are that there won't be nearly enough white collar jobs open for the students when they graduate. So why not teach them "useful" subjects which stress actual work experience?

Birthday.

It was five years ago this week that the president signed the Social Security Act. Since then the program has distributed $3,000,000,000 in benefits. Right now 1,500,000 jobless, 1,983,000 old folks, 809,000 orphans and 48,000 blind are receiving regular Social Security checks.

Abroad

'Wasteful Maneuver.'

Italian troops slogged into scorching British Somaliland, in East Africa, this week but failed to get much of a rise out of King George's men.

British general headquarters at Cairo, Egypt, explained the Tommies were "making the enemy use up his precious supplies of food, petrol and ammunition . . . in what is strategically a wasteful maneuver."

The Rome government put out dark hints that it will demand parts of the Greek and Yugoslav coasts in a "general settlement" for Albania, which it annexed last year. The Adriatic crisis was set off by the slaying of an Albanian patriot, allegedly by two Greeks, and of a fascist leader in Yugoslavia.

It was heightened by the sinking of a Greek cruiser by a submarine.

Nazis Advise Tolerance.

In the first flush of Rumania's new pro-Nazi enthusiasm a few weeks ago anti-Jewish laws even more drastic in some respects than Germany's were passed. This week Rumanians heard that Nazis hoped anti-Semitism would be soft-pedaled for the present. Jews occupy so vital a spot in Rumania's economic life that Nazis feared their sudden exclusion would slow down the flow of goods to Germany.

Oriental Vacancy.

An American submarine nosed into Shanghai harbor this week and right into the middle of Japanese ambition to take over the British sector of the International Settlement and command of the Shanghai defense forces.

Aboard the undersea boat, coming from the U. S. base at Tsingtao, was Admiral Thomas C. Hart. Hart outranked Rear Admiral Moriji Takeda, commander of the Japanese naval garrison.

Hart's arrival strengthened American hopes for joint American-Japanese policing of the British section.

People

Oil Man Out.

Directors of the Texas corporation never begrudged the $100,000-a-year they paid their president, Norwegian-born Capt. Torkild Rieber.

He opened the giant Barco concession deep in the Colombian jungle and made it pay; he won for Texaco a half-interest in the rich Bahrein oilfield on the Persian gulf; he gambled in supplying General Franco with oil in the Spanish war, came out on top.

But this week the officials accepted his resignation after a New York newspaper had associated him with the shadowy Dr. Gerhard Westrick, a German business agent in the U. S.

Commissars Lose Jobs.

When the Bolsheviks grabbed power in 1917 few tried-and-true comrades were qualified to serve as army officers. So a unique system was devised whereby officers of doubtful loyalty were left in command but watched by political commissars of equal rank.

In the near-disastrous Finnish campaign dual leadership didn't promote efficiency. This week commissars were abolished.

In Short

Killed: Australia's chief of staff and three cabinet ministers in an unexplained airplane crash.

Appointed: James A. Farley to supervise Coca-Cola company's export business, a job that won't interfere with his New York Yankee baseball club negotiations.

Swept: The southeastern Atlantic coast by a hurricane which killed at least 35 persons and caused millions of dollars worth of property damage.

MIRIAM BLUM AND CHESTER BUSH WED

Formal Ceremony Performed at 8 O'Clock This Morning Before the Altar of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

WEARING a white net and satin gown, Miss Miriam Blum became the bride of Chester Bush at 8 o'clock this morning in a formal ceremony at St. Peter's Catholic church. Rev. Russell Gillig officiated at the service, and Raymond Baum presided at the organ.

The bride is the daughter of Andrew J. Blum, R. D. 2, Crestline. Her dress was fashioned with a double net skirt which extended into a three-yard train, and the fitted bodice featured a square neckline and appliqued satin designs. A beaded pearl crown held her fingertip veil in place, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and white roses.

Miss Virginia Bush, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid-of-honor. Her dress of pink net was made similarly to the bride's and was trimmed with pink and blue bows. She wore a powder blue hat with attached veil and carried pink gladioli and carnations with blue delphinium.

Mr. Bush, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bush, 609 Lida street, chose his brother, Edward Bush, to be his best man. Another brother, Raymond Bush, and a cousin, Edmund Bush, were the ushers.

An informal reception will be held this evening at the home of the bridegroom parents for 85 relatives and friends of the couple. The refreshment table will be decorated with a pink and white color scheme and a bouquet of mixed summer flowers at this time.

The couple is taking a northern motor trip, and after Aug. 25 will reside at 604 Grant street. For traveling, the bride will wear a street-length dress of navy blue crepe with white accessories. She is a graduate of Crestline high school. Mr. Bush attended St. Peter's high school and now is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Miss Virginia Casperson, worthy advisor, welcomed the guests, and the toastmistress was Miss Norma Jane Miller. The response from the mothers was given by Mrs. J. R. Turner, who gave an original poem.

The poem which was written for the occasion told of the seven colors of the Rainbow and their meaning as exemplified in girlhood. Miss Mercile Schaaf gave a toast to the fathers which was responded to by Fred Ohler.

The remainder of the evening was spent socially. The next meeting of the assembly will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the K. of P. hall. Nine girls will be initiated at that time and guests from neighboring assemblies will be in attendance.

Smith as the hostesses. Mrs. Frampton will be one of Miss Anderson's attendants tomorrow, when she becomes the bride of Robert P. Rohrer in a home wedding.

There were 15 guests in attendance at the dinner, and they were seated at two tables decorated with white flowers and candles. Two white spinning wheels formed the centerpiece, and spinning wheel place cards were used as favors.

The group made a bride's book for the honoree during the evening, and then presented her with a shower of personal gifts. She also received a wedding gift of furniture from the two hostesses in honor of the occasion.

CHAPTER XX

"Gee, Marilyn, what's happened?" Kathleen Garvan leaned over from her desk to inquire. "You look like a ghost. Can I get you a glass of water?"

Marilyn said, so low that Kathleen had to strain to catch the words, "Thanks. I'm all right. I'm fine. I guess it was the memo—it sort of surprised me. It's from Mr. Gordon, Bruce Gordon. I'm to see him in his office."

"From the boss? Personal from B. G. himself?" Kathleen's eyes were so wide they resembled twin blue pools. "Gee, that really is something!"

Marilyn followed the boy, conscious only of the heaviness of her feet and the dryness of her lips. He led her through a series of two outer offices in which typewriters clicked busily, and motioned her through a door. Across one corner of a room flooded with sunlight was a great mahogany desk. It was the largest, the handsomest desk Marilyn had ever seen, the deep red-brown of its surface burnished to shining satin, the carved figures across its front standing out in bold relief like living things marching. Behind the desk, the height of him commanding its expanse, sat Bruce Gordon.

"Come in, Miss Marsh," he called cordially and turned to a slim dark girl who obviously had been taking dictation. "That will be all for the present, Miss Thompson." The girl left immediately, closing the door after her.

"Sit down, won't you?" Bruce Gordon rose and drew a chair closer to his own. "You admire the desk, don't you? It was father's. Rather a beauty. Not easy to live up to always, nor to him—father. You're wondering why I sent for you. There's a little matter—"

"I know, Mr. Gordon," Marilyn said, surprised by her own calm, now that she faced the inevitable. "I'm sorry."

"You know?" It was the man, now, who showed surprise. "I'd have sworn—but I'm afraid I'm the one to be sorry. I owe your sister an apology, Miss Marsh."

"You owe my sister—you owe Clara an apology? What for? Why should you apologize to Clara—after last night—?"

"For being pretty abrupt when she telephoned me a half hour ago and asked me to dine with her in her hotel apartment this evening. She said that you, too, are to be a guest. Somehow the invitation didn't quite ring true. I pleaded another engagement."

Marilyn flushed so painfully that Bruce Gordon turned his head to gaze out the window. Suddenly he wanted to take her in his arms, to hide her face on his shoulders.

"The invitation was not true, so far as I am concerned in it, Mr. Gordon," Marilyn said. "I know nothing about dinner with Clara. This is the first I've heard of it—from you."

Those flecks of fire came into Bruce Gordon's eyes again. "I suspected as much," he said. "So I declined. Said I had an engagement. Perhaps it was wishful thinking. Perhaps—would you dine with me this evening, Miss Marsh?"

The question was so unexpected, so eager, so ringing with sincerity it brought Marilyn to her feet. Impulsively she held out her hand.

"Why yes, of course," she said, tingling with a new joy. "I'd love dining with you."

* * *

A few minutes after half past seven the house phone in Marilyn's room rang and a voice that quickened her already racing pulse said, "This is Bruce Gordon. I'm downstairs in the lobby."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Gordon, I'll be down at once."

Marilyn rushed back to the mirror to complete her toilet. She was wearing the black frock of the night before and a chic little pillbox of a hat, black and saucy, accenting the copper-red in her hair. The hat had been a hasty and reckless purchase on her way home from the office. It was the first money she had spent for herself from her Clarco prize award, aside from actual necessities. But tonight she wanted to be bright and gay and attractive, and what can better make a woman feel bright and gay and attractive than a smart new bonnet?

Marilyn had returned to her room in the hotel to find it empty, save for a maid quickly engaged in trying to bring order out of chaos. Clara had left clothing strewn about, and toiletries scattered over bureau and tables. Talcum dust and soiled towels littering the floor.

"The young lady who was here," Marilyn inquired, setting to work at once to help the fuming servant who was at no pains to conceal her attempt, "she has gone?"

"That she has," snapped the maid, "an' good riddance to bad rubbish. Her ringin' for service ever' other minit, orderin' this an' orderin' that, shoutin' at myself, she did, because she couldn't get in them clothes in the closet on account of them bein' too small so's she couldn't pry 'em on even with a shoehorn. So then she sent to her own hotel an' a maid from there brung her clothes. An' she left without as much as a thankya after turnin' this place downside up till you'd think wild horses'd been trompin' in it."

"I'm sorry," Marilyn said. "I'll help with the room and pay you for your trouble. What time did Cla— the young woman leave?"

"Near four of the afternoon I'd say it was." The maid was mollified. "Right after she'd called up some man on the phone. What he said made her so hoppin' mad she threw a hairbrush under the bed an' stomped her feet an' then she sailed out like she was a queen stead of nothin' but a huzzy—begging your pardon, miss."

Marilyn thought, "I should excuse myself to Bruce—to Mr. Gordon. I should go on trying to get hold of Clara, trying to help her get hold of herself. Maybe if I went to Herman Hess, if I begged him to help me, to help Clara——"

But indignation over Clara's unbelievable behavior — indignation and a disquieting urge to sit across a table from a tall young man with sun in his hair and flecks of light in his eyes, these were stronger, tonight, than a sisterly sense of duty.

When Marilyn stepped from an elevator, Bruce Gordon hurried forward to take her arm. The touch of his hand on her elbow was friendly, comforting. He knew the exact proportions of courtesy and intimacy necessary to put a girl at her ease.

"This is sporting of you, Miss Marsh," he greeted her. "It was cheeky of me to ask you to share your evening with me but —well, I wanted a part of it so very much, and the question just popped out before I could do anything about it. Have you a favorite eating spot, by the way?"

"No favorites," Marilyn said. She felt warm and safe and exultant. "I'm a stranger in the city, you know. I'm glad the invitation popped before you could get it under control."

"We'll make better time in a taxi," Bruce Gordon said, handing Marily into a cab. "I've an idea for you, to take or reject as you like. Martino is feeling much better, in fact he is sitting up. I thought you might like to stop and pay him a call. I've arranged to have the doctor stand by for a while in case you decide to honor us. He is there now and will wait until he hears from me."

"Oh, could we?" anxiously. "I've felt terribly about not being able to see Al. It was my fault, his being hurt. He went to the Blue Parrot to help me—about Clara—he might have been badly hurt, even killed. He's such a real friend, so loyal and—and—well, Al is just about the best friend a girl could have."

"Friend?" The question was made to sound like a casual one, but there was deeper meaning behind it.

"Why yes," Marilyn went on enthusiastically. The deeper meaning had escaped her. "You saw what happened in the Blue Parrot. I couldn't have gone there alone. I had to find Clara. Poor Al! Being my friend hasn't brought him much luck, has it? A near-broken head—it's a pretty high price to pay—for friendship."

"Thanks," Bruce Gordon said, cryptically and drew Marilyn's hand through his arm. "At least I hope—I understand. Here we are. I'll have the taxi wait. The doctor says you're to stay only a few minutes. Poor devil got quite a shock."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Although I had been prepared by my intuition for what Miss Whitlock was saying, her putting of my secret fear about Edith Fairfax into speech was nevertheless a distinct blow to me.

For several seconds I was silent, struggling for words with which to answer her, and only the consciousness that Miss Whitlock was really distressed by the effect of her words made it possible for me to throw off the almost physical illness which the thought of Edith's wish to go out of the world had brought to me.

"You have so much on your mind, I really should not bother you with this," she said doubtfully, and her apology galvanized me into impetuous and remorseful speech.

Had to Know.

"Of course you should tell me," I said vehemently. "I am the one who must know, so that I can deal with the situation. There is no use troubling anyone else with it."

"I am afraid there is some one else who will have to be troubled," she said, and her voice was as near uneasiness as I had ever heard it.

"You mean—" I said breathlessly.

"I mean your husband," she returned. "She insists that she must see him."

She stopped, evidently waiting for a reply from me, but though I knew I would soon gain control of my voice, for the moment speech was impossible for me. I think the nurse saw this for she hurried on.

Tried Her Best.

"For awhile I put her off purposely," she said, "thinking that she would not try suicide as long as she had that incentive to live. But I saw that she was getting desperate, and last night, in answer to her pleadings I asked your husband to come in to see her."

She paused again, obviously a bit embarrassed, and I wondered if she were afraid I might think her too officious.

"I should have gone to you first, I suppose," she said hesitantly, "but I could not find you, and it seemed an emergency."

I hastened to reassure her, and made my answer emphatic.

"You did exactly right," I told her, and meant it. But I could not put the question on my lips, why, I hardly knew myself. But insistently beating against my brain was the query I could not voice: Had Dicky granted the request of the woman who had loved him so madly—and—so hopelessly?

The Question.

I shall never know whether or not Miss Whitlock guessed my feeling. At any rate she answered my unspoken question when she had made an apologetic little explanation.

"I did not tell your husband what I feared," she said. "I have been wondering since if I were wrong in withholding the knowledge."

She paused again, and I found my voice, shrilling an insistent "Why?" at her.

"Because he would not come in to see her," she said.

"Oh!" I exclaimed, really dismayed, for I could imagine the effect upon Edith such a flouting of her request would have. "He should not have done that. What reason did he give you for his refusal?"

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—For movie fans who know their stars but are a little hazy about directors, the movie sets themselves can serve as pegs on which to pin identities.

The character of sets, and the people working in them, can tell you who's the man behind the camera—even if he's hidden there. Let's try it:

Here's a big, rich estate—gray stone walls, an expanse of garden and lawn, a dignified, richly appointed mansion. On the trellised porch is a cocktail table, with a bottle of champagne in an ice bucket, a cocktail shaker, crystal glasses, a load of silver. There's a "feel" of butlers and maids in the background, with richly dressed, glittering people—Katharine Hepburn in bridal white, minus veil; Mary Nash in matronly but dashing black; Ruth Hussey in pour-you-in formal gown and new, slick coiffure; John Halliday, Roland Young, James Stewart; a little girl in a "formal," Virginia Weidler. There's a tinkling of glasses and cracking of brittle dialogue. The director is admonishing Miss Hepburn to quit eating the props, for she's filching a tidbit from the table, and calls for another rehearsal—a director with an eye to minute details of timing and stage craft. On the side, a press agent is telling you how sweet and co-operative Miss Hepburn is, despite all those old tales—but Hepburn's sweetness (when she wants to be sweet) never was news.

Well, that setting couldn't be anybody's but George Cuker's. And it's "Philadelphia Story."

Let's try another, a newspaper office, full of "characters." It's the whole works—that door from Barbara Stanwyck's columnar cubbyhole, where she writes "Odds and Ends." The door opens into the city room. It looks like a city room. Miss Stanwyck, entering enraged, kicking over a wastebasket, might be said to act like a columnist. The old proofreader, who enters and asks her for another stick of type to fill out her space, is a "character." Everybody around is a "character." The dialogue lets you know that some rich old so-and-so has just bought the paper and is doing some promiscuous firing. The director sits under the camera lens and suggests, quietly, certain changes in the proceedings. He's mild and sure and he doesn't raise his voice—but the setting, the "characters," and the story situation yell out that he's Frank Capra, starting "Meet John Doe."

And another, a colossal set, full of Indians and bright-coated soldiers. There's rush and bustle: there's a plenitude of make-up men and hair-dressers and first, second and third assistants all yelling through loudspeakers for QUIET. There's the director, not sparing his own loudspeaker. There are flunkies and stooges and yes-yesmen all over the place, which is colossal. Colossal. COLOSSAL. Colossal B. DeMille and "Northwest Mounted Police."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BUSINESS PASS DEADLY

Few implements of bridge warfare are more deadly, when the right chance to use it arrives, than the "business pass" which some players call the "penalty pass." This comes after your partner has made an informative or take-out double and the next player passes. If you find yourself loaded for the opponents' declaration, able to beat the contract out of it you [illegible] pass. On some occasions [illegible] opponents then will begin to [illegible] and keep bidding other [illegible] in an effort to get out of [illegible]. Some of these your partner will double and some you will [illegible] the poor victims winding up [illegible] which gets set [illegible] mean the one only really does [illegible] East [illegible] side of [illegible] in effect [illegible] [illegible] business double. South [illegible] panicky. Had he kept his mouth shut then, he would have had a good play for his contract and might have made it. But he made an "SOS redouble" to compel his partner to take him out. From then things got progressively worse for the side. When one tried a bid which one of the opponents could not double, the other took a crack at it.

The whole thing was started, of course, by the business pass.

West led his heart 4 to the A, then East took his club Q on a finesse of the J. The diamond Q was covered by the K and the singleton A had guessing by South and then the heart 2 knocked out the K. The spade 7 covered by the 8 lost to the A. East took the diamond J, then lost the 9 to the 10. A club went to the A, then the spade 5 lost to the Q. The spade K, club K, heart Q and diamond 8 followed, setting it four tricks.

Your Week-End Lesson.

No suits having been bid by the opponents, and the spade 6 led by West, how should South plan his play for 3-No Trumps, with each of the four hands below as dummy?

FIREMAN WAITS DECISION UPON OUSTER HEARING

Blood Test Report Admitted As Evidence on Charge Of Intoxication.

ASHLAND—Harry Ewing, driver for the Ashland fire department, awaits the decision of the City Civil Service Commission on the charges of Mayor Howard S. Lutz that Ewing was intoxicated on duty on July 22.

A two hour hearing was held last night at the city building before the commission composed of Dr. C. G. Devoe, Jay Shidler and John Gardner. The commission ruled to give its decision in the case at a later date.

Mayor Lutz charged Ewing with being intoxicated on July 22 after he had received a telephone call to that effect. Ewing submitted to a blood test at the office of Dr. H. M. Gunn soon after the accusation was made.

Dr. Gunn's report, given at the hearing, stated that the alcohol found in Ewing's blood amounted to .235 pound of absolute alcohol or 4.7 ounces by volume and that this was sufficient to render him intoxicated.

Testifying were Francis Edwards and Kenneth Marvin, employes of the Moneysmith pool room, who stated that Ewing had been served wine and beer there on July 22.

Fourteen acquaintances who had come in contact with Ewing on July 22 between 7 a. m. when he went on duty and midnight stated that there were no signs that Ewing was intoxicated that day. Character testimonies in Ewing's favor were made by John Goham, retired policeman and W. Art Mason, former mayor.

Mayor Lutz, attorney, conducted his case with Attorney Locke Mason representing the defendant.

The defendant, who repeatedly declared that he was not intoxicated on the day of July 22, was dismissed by the mayor following the blood test made by Dr. Gunn. He had been a member of the Ashland fire department for 13 years.

Carl Hartson, father of the three children, and driver of the truck which overturned, suffered a badly crushed and lacerated left hand which may necessitate the amputation of parts of several fingers.

A daughter, Irene, sustained a collar bone fracture, while two sons, Oliver and Junior, suffered numerous cuts and bruises. Norma Jean, another daughter, escaped without injury.

The steering apparatus of the truck, which was loaded with feed, is reported to have gotten out of order causing the vehicle to leave the road.

Once-Beaten Hermans Reach Finals In Softball Tourney

Combine Meets American Legion Team In Finals

Club Pounds Out 21 Hits In Registering 13 to 3 Triumph Over Lorain In Semi-Finals.

UNLIMBERING their heavy artillery to mark up the largest score of the season, the Sons of Herman today have reached the finals of the district softball tournament at Elyria.

Pounding out 21 hits for a total of 35 bases, the Hermans routed the Lorain Hart Jewelers by a 13 to 3 count in a semi-final tussle under the lights at Elyria last night.

Manager Frank Beeber's combine clashed with the hard-hitting Lorain American Legion team in the finals at 8.30 p. m Sunday. The winner will participate in the state tournament in Massillon later this month.

Led by Harry Ross, who smashed out a home run, double and single, the Hermans forged into the lead by a 4-0 count in the first and never trailed

While the Hermans were enjoying a field day, Jimmy Fullager was keeping Lorain's 10 hits well scattered. The losers scored single runs in the fourth, fifth and six innings. Fullager fanned one and gave up a walk.

* * *

The Hermans, who are the district defending champions, added a single run in the second, three more in the fourth, one in the fifth and two each in the sixth and seventh.

It was the most impressive triumph ever chalked up by the classy Mansfield team in a softball tournament.

The Lorain American Legion outfit advanced to the finals last night with a 4 to 2 win over Sandusky Knights of Columbus. While the Lorain club possesses a dangerous attack, its pitching staff has not shown great form and Sunday's contest may develop into a wild affray.

In reaching the finals the Hermans have eliminated Amherst, the Ashland Faultless Rubber company and the Jewelers.

* * *

Al Stickler collected a double and two singles, while Ed Henrich secured three singles and Frank Balbaugh had a pair of doubles. Jim Stout added a home run to the attack

Rachel Hurls No-Hitter In Club League

Pitches Foresters to 7-1 Win Over Freights.

Roy Rachel held the spotlight in the Y. M. C. A. Softball league yesterday.

Rachel, working on the hill for the Catholic Foresters, entered the softball "hall of fame" when he hurled a no-hit game against the Summit Freights at North Lake park yesterday. The Foresters won the game 7 to 1, in one of two league contests played.

Six opposing batters reached first base, in a game called in the eighth inning because of darkness. Rachel struck out seven men and issued five bases on balls

The lone Summit run was scored in the sixth inning by Fisher, the Summit catcher. He scored from third on an infield out. He was advanced to third on two successive walks, followed by a wild pitch.

While Rachel was holding the Summit Freights hitless, his teammates were collecting a total of 12 hits off R. Hetler, who walked two men and struck out the same number. Romano, Malaska and Lang collected two hits apiece for the Foresters, and Malaska and Lang each scored two of the seven runs.

* * *

In the other Club League setto, the J. A. C's defeated the Phalanx fraternity 13 to 5. The J. A. C. team put across four runs in the first inning, three in the second, five in the third and one in the fourth, while the Phalanx nine did its scoring in the first and fifth innings.

Ineffective Pitching Costs Braves

INEFFECTIVE pitching cost the Mansfield Braves another Ohio State league victory last night.

With Tony Drewek on the hill, the Braves saw their chances of winning an affray disappear when Fostoria collected five markers in the seventh inning and hand the Braves a 6 to 2 whipping at Fostoria.

* * *

Fostoria held a 1 to 0 advantage going into the seventh and had Drewek been able to silence the Red Birds' bats the Braves would have finished on top

Mansfield, behind 6 to 0, scored two runs in the ninth. Each combine collected seven hits apiece.

Fostoria invades Mansfield for a single tilt tonight and George Laurila is expected to be Manager Dewey Stover's choice to toe the rubber. The contest will start at 8:30.

A new pitcher made his debut with the Braves last night. He is Byers, who relieved Tony in the seventh with one man out. Who he replaced on the Braves' hurling corps and where he hails from were not revealed by the Mansfield club officials.

Fenny was on the hill for the last-place Red Birds and he proved effective until his teammiates provided him with the six-run advantage. He fanned 10 and walked five.

The Red Birds will also provide the opposition for the Braves at the Fair park Sunday. With all the postponed games early this season it is likely that the Sunday attraction will be a doubleheader, although Brave officials have been silent on the subject.

If two contests are played Sunday the first game will start at 1:30 p. m. and all Knot Hole league members will be admitted free.

* * *

Hal Hundemer set the pace for the Braves at the plate last night with two singles. He was the only member of the team to secure more than one hit. Stan Olesko, a former Brave, led his team with a triple.

Jimmy Foxx' Homers Give Boston Victory

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

FOR the sake of balancing up the hall of fame, it's a good thing Jimmy (the Beast) Foxx is a handy guy out there on the ball field.

Jimmy seems a dead-eyed cinch to make the Cooperstown institution when he finally winds up his grand career. However, since there are two first sackers in the hall of fame—Lou Gehrig and George Sisler—and since Jimmy generally has been regarded as a first baseman, that particular niche is going to be somewhat overcrowded.

But Jimmy has filled in ably at third base in his time, has pitched some and done outfield patrol when needed. Right now he's catching for the Boston Red Sox, simply because there's no other able-bodied citizen around who can handle the assignment

Foxx's latest contribution to his record as one of the game's never-to-be-forgotten fellows is in boosting his lifetime total of home runs to 495 with a pair of four-baggers in yesterday's ten-inning 7-6 decision over the Washington Senators. This puts him in second plame among the home-hammerers of all time, ahead of old Iron Hoss Gehrig, who wound up with 494, and leaves only Babe Ruth out in front The Babe hit 714

"The Beast's" second wallop yesterday broke up the ball game and enabled the Sox to pick up a game in their chase after the Detroit Tigers for second place in the American league race. Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox exploded a nine-run firecracker on Detroit's Tommy Bridges in the eighth inning to breeze in with a 13-4 win.

This loss, coupled with Cleveland's 8-3 decision over the St. Louis Browns, in which rapid Robert Feller flipped his 21st victory, boosted the Tribe's American league lead to three games.

Cincinnati's Reds also did a little lead-boosting in the National league. They climbed over the Chicago Cubs for 26 hits and a sweep of a doubleheader, 9-4 and 6-3, to skyrocket 6½ games out in front.

The double defeat dropped the Cubs to sixth place in the flag chase and boosted the St. Louis Cardinals to fifth. The Cards broke even with the Pittsburgh Pirates losing the first game 6-5 and taking the afterpiece 9-5. Elbie Fletcher's single produced the Pirates' winning run in the ninth inning of the first game. The Pirate hurlers couldn't find the plate in the finale and walked nine men.

A total of 33,590 customers jammed Ebbets field for Freddy Fitzsimmons' "night," and after fat Freddy received a variety of of gifts, the Boston Bees nipped the second-place Dodgers 2-1 on Buddy Hassett's 12th inning single. Nick Strincevich allowed five hits and Vito Tamulis gave up only six in going all the way for their respective clubs.

* * *

Hal Schumacher settled down after giving up two runs in the first inning and hurled an eight-hitter for a 5-3 victory for the New York Giants over the futile Phillies.

Indians Send Harder Against St. Louis Today

Feller Whips Browns, 8 to 3, to Take Three-Game Lead Over Detroit In Pennant Race.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—It doesn't take a numerologist to figure the number 3 is "favorable" to the Indians when they're that many games ahead of their closest rival.

An 8 to 3 victory over the jinx club—St. Louis—put the Tribe that far out in front of the second-place Detroit Tigers today, and primed the Redskins for the second contest of their four-game series with the Browns.

Mel Harder got a chance to wipe out his past showing against the current visitors. Loser of two games to St. Louis, Harder was chosen by Manager Oscar Vitt to oppose John Niggeling on the mound.

Bob Feller took the credit for yesterday's victory, the Tribe's fifth straight and the young speedballer's 21st He reached the 200 strikeout mark, too, fanning three batters, but he had trouble getting started.

* * *

The Browns clubbed him for six hits and two runs in the first two innings. After that he got things under control, and walked only one man during the entire game.

* * *

Meanwhile the Indians blasted their nemesis, Elden Auker, and Bill Trotter for 13 safe blows. Auker, who had won three of four games against Cleveland previously, retired in the eighth for a pinch hitter. He was charged with the loss.

* * *

Now to get back to a few figures, which are making mathematicians out of Cleveland fans.

Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox pilot, brought about some of the figuring by predicting the club that can win 93 games this season gets the pennant.

On that basis, Cleveland must win 24 of its remaining 41 games, or play .585 compared to its .611 percentage for the season to date and .700 for the past month. The next four clubs, the number they must win, present percentages and the kind of ball they must play are as follows:

Detroit, 27 games, .584 and .659; Boston, 33, .536 and .786; New York, 37, .519 and .804; and Chicago, 37, .519 and .804.

Lou Boudreau, Cleveland's brilliant shortstop, is leading the American league in doubles despite one of the most unorthodox batting stances in the majors.

Named to the all-star team in his first full season in the big show, the former University of Illinois lad is hitting a healthy .317 and has connected for 41 two-base blows.

Lou says he can't recall when he started using his over-the-plate arch. He stands away from the plate with his legs and body arched back, his shoulders and arms extended forward at a sharp angle.

"I didn't realize how strange I look at the plate until I saw some pictures in spring training this year," Lou said. "I guess I had been bending that way for a long time.

"I don't know where I got the idea. Steve O'Neill, my manager at Buffalo, helped me a lot with my batting and he seemed to think it was all right."

Boudreau's closest pal on the club is his double-play partner, Second Baseman Ray Mack.

The boys have a nickel pool between them on errors, with each boot costing five cents. At the end of the season the one with the fewer errors will get the pot.

TRADERS WAIT DEVELOPMENTS IN WAR SCENE

Leading Stocks Stay Within Narrow Course as Bombs Drop on Britain.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks crawled over a narrow course in today's market as traders wailed for developments in the battle of England.

While speculative contingents seemed a bit less nervous than in the preceding session—many still retained the hope Britain would be able to withstand the terrific air onslaughts of the Nazis—the majority inclined to keep commitments light pending more definite information from abroad.

Cloudiness of the national tax program remained as a confusing element marketwise.

Among resistant stocks were U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, American Smelting, Anaconda, Westinghouse, General Electric, DuPont, J. C. Penney, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific.

Backward at times were Bethlehem, Phelps Dodge, Eastman Kodak, Chesapeake & Ohio, Youngstown Sheet and Sperry.

ILL ONE YEAR

George Schill, 80, of Shelby, Dies at Home of Son.

SHELBY — George Francis Schill, 80, former Shelby resident, died Friday at the home of his son, Cecil, in Mansfield following a lingering illness. He had been ill a year.

Mr. Schill had made his home in Shelby until eight years ago when he moved to Mansfield to live with his son.

Surviving are two brothers, Gus and John of Mansfield; three sisters, Mrs. M. O. Bushey, Mrs. Jennie Rambo and Mrs. Harry Reinken, all of Shelby, and a grand daughter, Jean Schill of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic church at 10:30 a. m. Monday with Rev. Michael McFadden, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial will be made at the parish cemetery here.

HOME TOWN OF NOMINEE PUTS ON DECORATION

Willkie to Give Stand on Issues In Address At 4 P. M.

notification program were on hand earlier. Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, who placed Willkie's name before the Republican convention, was selected to open the Callaway park speech-making at 4 p. m. to Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, national party chairman, fell the honor of informing Willkie of his nomination.

The presidential candidate prepared a 30-minute speech outlining his views on domestic and foreign issues. He will return to Rushville this evening for the week-end.

Willkie's portrait was emblazoned on circular panels on each downtown light post, surmounted by clusters of American flags. In front of the high school which bears the legend "the hope of our country," a speaking platform was erected.

In the park, more elaborate arrangements were completed just in time for the festivities. For the background of the platform, there was a long white wall, splashed with red stars and flags. In front of this, 35,000 seats were placed, with plenty of standing room in the rear.

Around the park were tents in which every kind of food from fish to watermelon could be purchased. Special water mains were run into the grounds to take care of the thirsty.

It was a day to which Elwood had been looking forward for nearly two months.

But the "home folks" were not alone in extending greetings to the Republican nominee. Special trains chartered by various Republican organizations came from several states, and each Indiana congressional district had a tent.

Rushville Wishes Best For Willkie

RUSHVILLE, Ind.—(INS)—With the best wishes of his in-laws, the neighbors and most of Rushville's 6,000 population, Wendell Willkie, Hoosier candidate for president of the United States, headed today for Elwood, 40 miles away, to deliver the acceptance speech which may make or break his candidacy.

Appreciating the importance of the speech to his candidacy, Willkie, who loves to "deal 'em off the arm" when he has a responsive audience, said that he would follow the text of this major talk to the last word.

In preparation for the big day, Willkie retired early after visiting the press room of the hotel where the reporters who will cover the notification ceremonies at Elwood are quartered.

Unconventional to the last, Willkie dropped around to the press room to discuss his speech and to explain why he took particular positions on particular issues.

The candidate was scheduled to leave for Elwood by special train at 9:30 a. m., (EST), after a short parade through Rushville by automobile to the railroad station.

He appeared fit and ready for the first really big moment of the campaign which has come to him since his nomination at Philadelphia.

Rushville was up early for the ceremonies and by six a. m., automobiles were moving in steady procession along the road leading to Elwood as practically the entire town moved out on the theory that an early start would beat the other fellow to the best parking location and the best seats at Callaway park in Elwood where the ceremonies were to be held.

Phil Willkie, son of the candidate, arrived last night to join his father and mother, making his first appearance in the picture since the Republican national convention. He has since been on an automobile tour with college friends.

Mrs. Phil Wilk, the 78-year-old mother of Mrs. Willkie, is attending the ceremonies, making a rare visit away from home due to the importance of the occasion and also in the party are Fred, Ed and Robert Willkie, brothers of the candidate, Mrs. Miller Hamilton, sister of Mrs. Willkie, and several other relatives.

After the program, the Willkie party was to return to Rushville and Willkie says that probably he will spend several days here before pushing on to a vacation either in Minnesota or at Mackinac island in Michigan.

harass enemy troop movements. Our bombers attacked Zeila and the nearby island of Adadleh, concentrating on military targets and troop concentrations. Repeated reconnaissances were made over the main roads of Somaliland.

"Italian bombers attempted to raid Berbera but were intercepted by aircraft operated by a French crew who succeeded in shooting down one Italian plane and driving off the others."

Italy Seeking Greek Position

ROME — (AP) — Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia indicated today that Italy would ask the Greek government to define its position on Italian claims in behalf of Italian-annexed Albania within a few days.

"We have reason to believe the Rome government proposes to clarify the attitude of Greece completely within the next few days," said the newspaper, which gave a more ominous turn to the recent propaganda campaign being waged against pro-British Greece.

"It is necessary that everything be brought to light. It will thus be possible to judge if those responsible in Athens intend to recognize the rights of Albania and Italy or suffer the consequences of a policy of complicity."

Heretofore the Italians have accused Greece of being a vassal of Britain, of aiding in her Mediterranean war against Italy and of conniving in plots along the Albanian frontier.

The newspaper said the British press was urging Greece to resist Italian demands.

Strongly hinting at possible invasion, it asked:

"Is it in the interest of the Greeks to repeat the experience of the Czecho-Slovaks, the Poles, Norwegians, Danes, Belgians and French?"

Raids Made Deep Into Nazi Territory to Hamper Air Blitzkrieg.

tives" were attacked. It mentioned specifically the hydrogeneration plant at Leuna, near Leipzig.

(German reports admitted attacks at Munich and Weimar.)

The score on yesterday's battles was placed by the air ministry at 75 German planes down and 22 British planes lost. Fourteen British pilots were safe. A revised tabulation placed Germany's losses Thursday at 170.

The air ministry said that while the Germans employed fewer planes yesterday, possibly because large scale attacks did not start until about 1 p. m., the "proportion of casualties which" the Germans sustained continued high.

It was thought significant that the air ministry mentioned "large forces" as carrying out the raids into Germany. It was thought that full reports may show that last night's attack was one of the heaviest and most widespread of the war.

There was a growing feeling here that the German air attacks are suffering under the punishing blows of the RAF and that raids will not increase materially in strength unless Germany has another ace in the hole.

Whatever the cause there appeared to be a notable fall-off in German air activity today. Up to 2 p. m., it appeared that German raiding was on the smallest scale in a week.

The air ministry indicated that anti-aircraft guns are taking a substantial toll of German planes. These guns destroyed 22 German planes Thursday and a total of 57 since Monday, it was said.

More German parachutes were found in the Midlands area today but again there was no evidence that parachute troops had employed them. Two were seen falling with nothing attached to them.

One raider dropped 16 incendiary bombs on a southeast coast town this morning. Fourteen more bombs were dropped near a golf course on the southeast coast, but there was little damage.

Britain was prepared for another day of massed plane attacks on harbors, airports, railroads and industrial areas.

The new raid began as air raid protection workers dug into the debris of London's southwest suburbs which had been battered by German bombs. It was believed the casualty list from yesterday's attacks would run high.

The rescue workers were hampered by delayed action bombs which the Germans had dropped yesterday and which had been exploding throughout the night and early morning hours.

Londoners were angered by the attack on the suburbs and many suggested that British planes strike at thickly populated industrial districts in Germany. The British have bombed military objectives around Essen and Munich. British planes also have flown over Berlin, but have never dropped bombs on the German capital.

Swarms of German bombers and fighters — some estimates placed the number at 2,500—swept out of leaden skies from dawn to dusk and blasted England, Scotland and Wales, and some broke through the defenses to reach London, the heart of Britain's far flung empire.

The great Tilbury docks and the industrial southwestern suburgs were subjected to a terrific bombing and today the police and home guards still were digging in the ruins for bodies of civilian dead.

The British fought back stubbornly, counting an official "bag" of 71 German planes while admitting the loss of 18. Pilots of 10 of the lost British planes were reported safe and uninjured.

The Germans continued sporadic raids over the English countryside during the night, but it appeared that the force of the attack had been spent. British raiders again spread out over German-occupied portions of the continent in an effort to paralyze Adolf Hitler's aerial blitzkrieg at the source.

Munich, a major city, only a few miles from Hitler's Bavarian retreat at Berchtesgaden, was reported raided during the night, but Germans minimized the damage.

Britons minimized foreign press reports that London had been subjected to a terrific bombing. Londoners were amazed to read the German claims of huge successes in bombing of military objectives in the suburbs, because with the exception of the bombing of Croydon airport Thursday and the southwest suburbs yesterday there has been no sign of an aerial blitzkrieg here.

Authorities believed that the attack on the suburbs was intended to break down civilian morale and that possibly many more such raids are in the making. They speculated that the Germans would offer the excuse that the civilian populations were sufficiently near military objectives to be raided.

They pointed out, however, that no military objectives were in or very near the suburbs attacked yesterday although an important main railroad line runs through them.

It also was pointed out that the air ministry for the first time charged the Germans with a deliberate attack on the residential town of Eastbourne, whose lack of military significance was classified as late as last June when it was designated as a safe place for refugees.
